

It seems the NRA gives strikers a chance to bark up wrong tree — too much barking is too much. The one great trouble with labor and me is we are forever talking about organizing. We know unionism is good.

So what? Well, we should organize once and tell about it afterwards. Let us have no more of this what we will do, but do it and tell what we have done.

The getting of results is simple indeed. So simple that it is a shame. For instance the shorter workday requires no extended remarks, just go out later and come in earlier — no labor board or other lumber is required — but we can't very well do that while we are making speeches about organizing.
