

John L. Lewis and his twelve apostles placed a union on I.W.W.'s doorstep—Heluva Take to play on the boss? Now all we have to do is bring the child in. The child of course is slightly dazed, as a result of the seperately ending agreements, and doesn't know who its father and mother is. So I guess we'll have to adopt the child and give it a respectable home. Seperately ending agreements might at first blush appear to be loss of generalship on the part of John L. Lewis. That is not so however; it is a tactic. John is teaching the boys to learn from mistakes. I.W.W. however has the complete pattern <sup>and</sup> is impervious to mistakes... Workers however should not be criticized too severely for making mistakes. Mistakes will happen to almost any of us. Errors are a peculiar thing—even law recognizes that errors will happen. There is no law that will convict an honest to goodness error. Law requires that the error be proven intentional—that of course is impossible because then it would not be an error. So I guess we'll just have to let it pass that the boys made a mistake.

CIO has been having tough luck in the State of Maine among the lumber workers and it is believed a little help from the outside would bring it into the fold and make of Bangor a winter capital for the I.W.W.—I do might consider this and send one of their best pulpwood makers to survey the stand.

Press would have us believe pezee and war between labor and capital hinged on the artfull machinations of one Mr Mc Grady; that if Mc Grady performed pezee would be born but if he felt indisposed wars would break out between this famous pair. I think Mr Mc Grady, himself, will deny this and say that he merely 'scrammed' before the wars got into heavy going.
