

Fantastic dreams of post-war trade are due for a rude awakening. Giant wharves, built to handle the commerce that was, are surplus baggage in the commerce that isn't...

Giant liners are through — cost of wharffage prohibits the use of them as showboats.

Return to simple life resembles Napoleon returning from Moscow; most thoroughly domesticated. There goes my reputation, folks, hand me my crutches. (Washington papers please copy).

As I see it the whole of Asia will be drenched in blood — saw it year ago — saw it years before — and said so.

The invasion begins Friday night — daylight saving time.
