

Average worker has a somewhat sketchy idea that he is selfsufficient; that he is beginning and end of all things pertaining to his personal empire; that he needs no help... and he cannot even reproduce himself without a partner; a woman, at that.

This sorrowful helplessness has grieved the scientists greatly and they are presently working on a "mumbo-jumbo" of chemical experiments with a view of making themselves independant of woman's aid, putting of romance in the scrappile and producing of better scientists from zinc, limestone, sulphur and molasses. Well sir and fellow worker, until the scientists do finally spring a sythetic homo-sapiens, you better align yourself with the IWW or some other good organization and see what present (pleasant) help you can put into the debate for freedom from wage-slavery; for they need your help as much as you need theirs.
